Card of Thanks

I would like to express my deep appreciation to my friends and relatives for their gifts, cards, visits and other acts of kindness while in the hospital.

May God richly bless each of you. Ernest C. Rogers 1-5-1p

Words cannot really express the gratitude we feel for those who have shared our loss with us. The visits, the food, the flowers, contributions in Dawn's memory, and the cards have meant so very much in this difficult time. And the sincere and deep feelings shown by the young people of Appomattox will always hold a very special place in our hearts.

Gratefully,
The Family of Dawn Rosser

I would like to thank my many friends, relatives, Rev. Crabtree, my pastor, and Rev. Grove for their visits and prayers while I was in the hospital. May God bless each and every one. Emma Fields 1-5-1p

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my wife and our mother, Nannie Bryant Day who passed away January 6, 1974.
All the days since she's been gone have been lonely,
But today is the saddest, for on this one
Four years ago she passed away:
Left us grieving for her presence in a home
That never will see her passing through it's rooms again
Except in memory.
Sadly missed, husband Van and children. 1-5-1p

Fatigue

Getting tired is a universal experience, and not an unpleasant one. This "tired all over" feeling is the kind that all of us feel at the end of a busy day. This type of fatigue is experienced by healthy individuals in the normal pursuit of their everyday activities. We all grow tired as the day progresses.

Normal fatigue is a reduced capacity to perform work, mental or physical, resulting from performance and recoverable by rest. A good night's sleep and rest should take care of normal fatigue. When a person is "permanently fatigued," the condition is abnormal. Less healthy is the fatigue that is not relieved by rest, tiredness that persists even after a good night's sleep. Your physician is well qualified to analyze the cause of persistent, chronic fatigue.

There are many factors that have a direct effect on our resistance to fatigue. Our environment in which we live and work, and the way in which each person responds to it, have a great deal to do with our efficiency. If overwork is the source of fatigue, the remedy lies in more rest, relaxation and sleep. Fatigue is your body's protective warning device. If you ignore the warning and push your body on and on, you put it under a strain. Two much of this kind of strain may cause serious damage.

Age and general health have effects on the onset of fatigue. Children tire and recuperate more quickly than adults. Older people's recovery from fatigue may be quite slow.

The fatigue which results from muscular activity has a toxic effect upon the organs of the body, which is passed off while the body is at rest. Cells are replaced, repaired by wholesome rest. In this age of high-pressure living, we often push ourselves beyond the limits of our ability to recover through the amount of sleep and rest we give ourselves. The remedy does not lie in eating vitamins or self-medication, but in seeking medical help.

Too often we moderns tend to push and pull too hard. We all need to remember that much can be accomplished merely by relaxing and "letting go."

A community service of the Health Department, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

Savory Chicken Spoonbread

Our founding fathers knew a good thing when they found it. And now you can sample their savory discovery in a simple penny-saving luncheon dish.

Savory Chicken Spoonbread — a cut above the colonial varieties — still relies on the same basic ingredients — corn meal, eggs and milk. With today's wide supply of herbs and spices, you can create a colonial dish with contemporary flair.

With our version of spoonbread, there's a built in bonus. Enriched self-rising corn meal supplies the B-vitamins — niacin, thiamin and riboflavin — plus the minerals, iron and calcium. Add this to the protein, vitamins and minerals supplied by the other ingredients, and you'll come up a winner!

Savory Chicken Spoonbread
6 servings

1 cup enriched self-rising corn meal
8 cups milk
1 can (4 oz.) mushrooms, stems and pieces, undrained
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon dried minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon basil
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon tarragon
2 cups cooked chicken, diced OR 2 cans (5 oz. each) boned chicken
4 egg yolks, beaten
4 egg whites
Chicken gravy, optional

Measure corn meal; set aside. Heat milk, mushrooms, butter, onion and seasonings in large saucepan until butter melts. Gradually stir in corn meal. Cook over medium heat until mixture boils; cook, stirring constantly, for 1 minute more. Remove from heat and cool. Stir in chicken, then egg yolk; mix thoroughly. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into corn meal mixture. Pour into greased 2-quart casserole dish. Bake in preheated 350° oven 45 to 50 minutes or until golden brown. Serve immediately: Top with chicken gravy, if desired.

UNDERSTANDING ALCOHOLISM

a health column from the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration
U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

What Is Drunkenness?

Drunkenness is characterized by a temporary loss of control over physical and mental powers caused by excessive alcohol intake.

Symptoms of drunkenness vary, but they can include impaired vision, distorted depth perception, thick speech, and bad coordination. The ability to solve problems is reduced, emotion and mood become unpredictable, memory is impaired, and judgment becomes poor.

In most States a person is considered legally drunk when he or she has a 0.10 percent blood alcohol level. This means that one part in every thousand parts of the person's blood is presently composed of pure alcohol.

For example, such a situation generally results when a person weighing about 160 pounds has had about seven drinks within two hours after eating. A person will reach this stage with fewer drinks if body weight is less than 160 pounds, with more drinks if weight exceeds this figure. In a few States, the legally drunk level is 0.15 percent. In either case, it is illegal to drive a car after the specified blood alcohol concentration is reached.

Contrary to a widespread impression, one cannot sober up by such devices as drinking black coffee, taking a cold shower, or breathing pure oxygen. It takes a specific amount of time for the body to burn up a quantity of alcohol, generally at the rate of seven grams (about one-quarter ounce) of pure alcohol per hour.

The effect of drinking alcohol can be varied only by controlling the rate and concentration with which it is drunk. Once alcohol is in the bloodstream, nothing can be done about its effects except to wait until it is metabolized by the body.

The body's reaction to excessive drinking is a hangover. The associated miseries of nausea, gastritis, anxiety, and headache vary from case to case, but there is always extreme fatigue. No scientific evidence supports the curative claims for coffee, raw eggs, oysters, chili peppers, steak sauce, vitamins or other drugs, or the "hair of the dog." Doctors usually prescribe aspirin, rest, and solid food.

If you choose to drink, the best way to avoid a hangover is to avoid drunkenness. Sip slowly, with food in the stomach, under relaxed circumstances, and pay attention to your responses to the alcohol so you don't drink too much.

If you would like to receive information and materials on different aspects of alcohol use, write to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, P.O. Box 2345, Rockville, Maryland 20852.
